It seems incredible that in a Colony where, since the war, Government and employers as a whole have made real efforts to adjust wages and allowances to fit living costs, it is possible for school teachers to be held down to starvation incomes. Teaching children is an exacting and responsible vocation; it is also a livelihood which should be invested with dignity—a dignity denied by owners of achools who require their staff to work for a pittance. Inevitably what happens is the unfortunate teacher seeks additional ways and means of augmenting his income which physical and mental strain impairing his work as a tutor.

Much Depends Today On Reds' Proposals At Panmunjom Munsan, Feb. 16.

Communist truce negotiators, backed by orders from Peking and Pyongyang, will today (Saturday) present to the Allied delegates a compromise proposal on the fifth and final item of the armistice agenda.

To the Reds this item-Item 5-is the most important one of the armistice agenda. Through it they hope to force an early withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea and to drag in at a future high level political peace conference all Asian problems.

A scene in London just after announcement of the death of King George VI. A newspaper queue in Sloan Square.

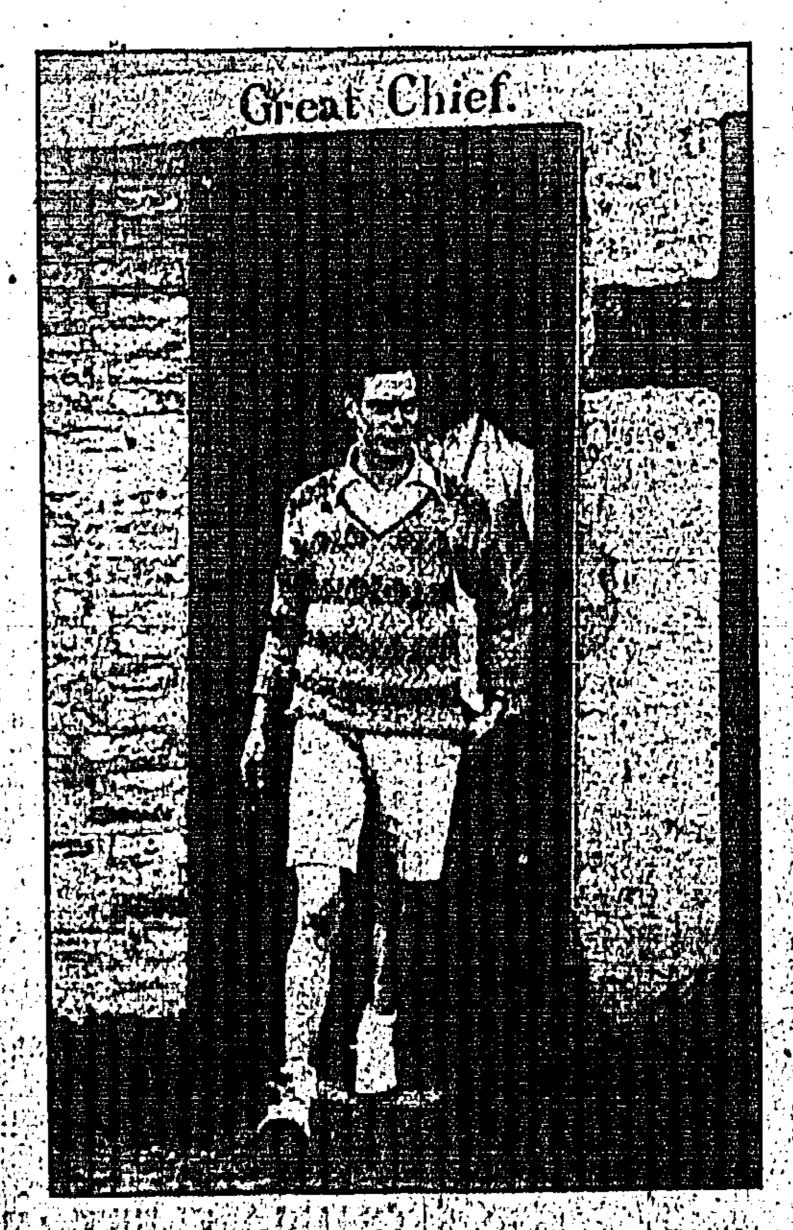

THE late King and his Queen on the balcony of Buckingham Palace after their wedding on April 26, 1923. (Reuterphoto).

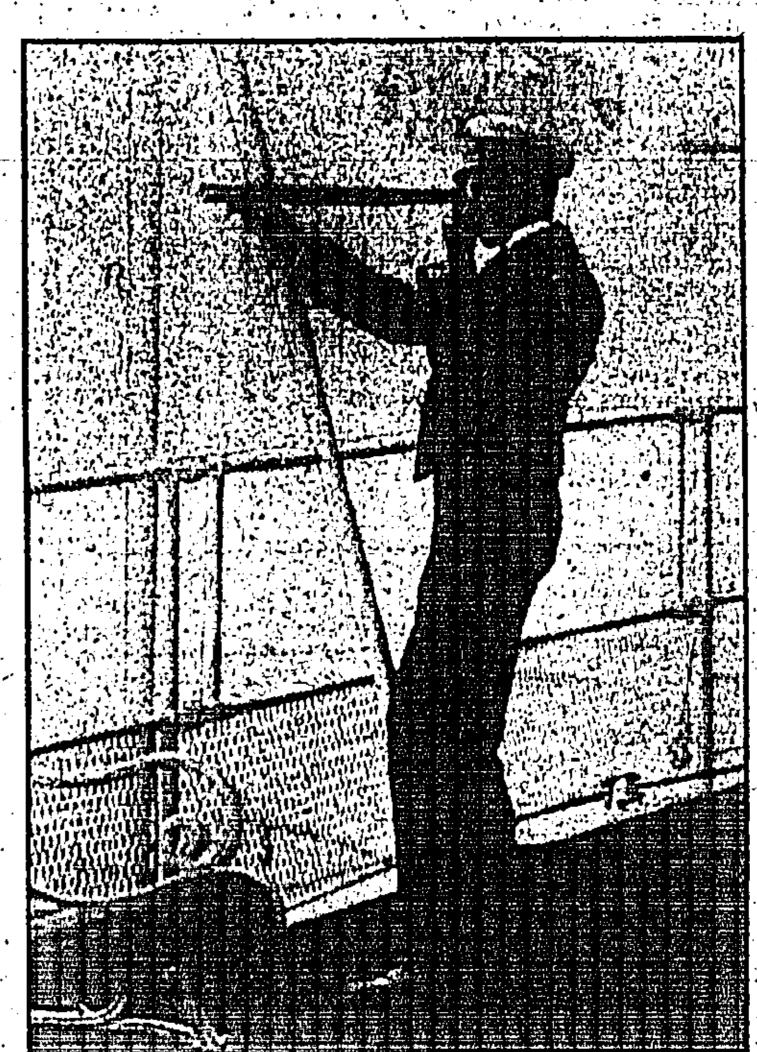

WITH brilliant pageantry, the Accession of Queen Elizabeth II was proclaimed in London on Friday, February 8. In picture on the left, the Garter King of Arms, Sir George Bellew, is seen reading the first proclamation in Friary Court, St. James's Palace. On the right is the Earl Marshal of England, the Duke of Norfolk. Below: The Clarenceux King of Arms reading the proclamation on the steps of the Royal Exchange.

It can be said that throughout there is the indefinable, subtle colouring-greys, yellows, pinks. Further that while there is no startling change in outline, yet the feminine is further stressed this year; expressing the unspoken need for practical yet supremely distinguished clothes.

As these last two years there has been this trend towards the rounded line, it seems reasonable to assume that it will continue but not to extremes as far as country clothes are concerned because it would defeat their object. As yet the difference between this year and last year is not so pronounced as to necessitate wholesale discarding of wardrobes except among the dwindling numbers of those who must follow fashion closely. On the other hand it does make clothes of two or three years ago look rather old-fashioned. From this point of view it is likely to bring a fair number of orders to the trade. Being more waisted is likely to appeal very much to the Latin American market and even to North America, where. hitherto it was considered that the typically English country clothes were too severe although the tailoring itself was always highly esteemed. In South America, in particular, it tends to reconcile two conflicting inclinations, that of wanting to appear very English and at the same time satisfying the natural Latin desire for pronounced

From this point of view is augurs well for British export prospects. The present fashion is not too elaborate to be copied to meet the capacity of the slender purse; so riarrow waists and rounded hips will not be the privilege of the rich but in due course will come general wear.

PREVENTING CAVITIES IN TEETH

WHAT can we do to prevent cavities in teeth? Dental scien-ters have been making, slow but sure progress toward ansvering this question.

Fraventing cavities, or dental caries as they are called, would ecrtainly take away much of the bother of growing up, both for children and parents. It would also pave the way for better teeth in adulthood. Brooding Place Quite recently it was my ogoln. misfortune to come across one such specimen, whose could have soundly boxed after less than half anhour's conversation.

bachelor (fortunately for couple of minutes) the opposite sex) he seemed to imagine that he understood more about women than any other man on earth.

We met at the house of a mutual friend, and after making the discovery that I was a writer of "happy endings" and that I firmly believed in them, he proceeded to give me opinion of what he called though I quickly decided that "self-love" was the only kind he had ever experienced.

TIE began by declaring that he II considered all women to be utterly selfish, and that if they were married they begrudged their husbands any freedom, and expected them to stay put at home (except, during working hours).

This, he said, was in spite of the fact that if they themselves happened to become friendly with some stray bachelor (like himself, I suppose) they at once took it for grunted that they were entitled to have an "affair" with him.

I gathered from his continued ramblings that he imagined every girl he met was immediately attracted by him, and expected, 'him to continue what was just a chance acquaintance with a lifelong and (if necessary) effect devotion.

According to his own account he had apparently been chased from one end of the world to the other by flirtatious females.

I always think, when I hear a man condemning all women, that there must be some—yery probably unhappy—experience the past which has driven him to adopt such a blitter and foolish outlook on life and so, although Adonis is not aware of the fact. I was sufficiently interested in the nonsense ha talked to try to discover something about his life.

BRADLEY'S BARRAGE

Tuday chairman of the American join chiefs of staff, General Bradley commanded the United States 1st Army in the invasion of Normandy, and sub-equently 12th Army Group till the end of the war. Next to General Eisenhower, he was the leading American soldier in Europe. He has written a most important and interesting book. It may lack the dignity of General Eisenhower's Crusade in Europe, but it is more lively and more revealing. It is also much more controversial.

The controversy centres largely around the person of Viscount Montgomery. Although General Bradley accords high praise on occasions to his British colleague, it is clear that he deeply disliked some of the decisions and many of the characteristics of that eminent soldier.

According to General Bradley

OFF SPINNER AND INSWINGER

Off spinners and inswingers are the most common types of bowling in modern first class cricket. This is undoubtedly due to the l.b.w. rule introduced in 1936 by the MCC and subsequently accepted by the whole of the cricket world.

Before then a batsman was only out l.b.w. if the ball, prevented by the batsman's legs from bowling him, pitched on a line between the two wickets. Under the new rule, a batsman could also be out if the ball pitched outside the off stump and would have hit the wicket, had not the batsman's legs stopped it and provided that the batsman was himself standing on a point directly between the two wickets.

Only Expert Play Made This Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY

Macastar, Surabala, Semarang, THERE were several traps and pitfalls in the hand shown today, but South managed to thread his way safely through all of them. If South had been less expert at managing the play, perhaps his partner would have been less aggressive in the bidding.

> West opend the deuce of diamonds, and Eart won with the acc East then returned the four of hearts— not the best defence.

South carefully took this trick in his own hand with the queen of hearts in order to try the spade finesse at once. When that succeeded he cashed the acc of spades and led a third, round of spades from the East hopefully stuck in the ten of hearts, but South did not make the mistake of over-ruffing. Instead he discarded a diamond.

East had to return a diamond, naking duminy ruff with the king of hearts. Declarer could now safely ruff a fourth round of spades, cash the are of hearts, and give up a heart trick to West's iack. Nothing could prevent declarer from reaching dummy with the ace of clubs in time to discard his remaining club on the last spade, Neatly played by South, to be sure, but not the best defence. If East returns a diamond at the second trick. It is all misery and floundering for poor South.

Declarer must ruff the second diamond in the dummy. What next? The best shot is to try for an extra spade trick by laying down the ace and then the queen of spades. (South would do better if he started the clubs, but he cannot know that.)

West takes the king of spades and returns a club. If declarer tries to club finesse. East wins and returns a diamond to make dummy ruit with the king. That sets up a trump trick for West as the fourth defensive trick.

and the Jig is up.

A-Levi the five of diamonds. It looks as though dummy has a good club suit behind you and that the setting tricks must come from spades and diamonds. A spade lead might well sacrifice a trick, whereas, a diamond lead is unlikely to give declarer anything that he could not have done for bimself.

JAGUARS MUST WIN

By "Grandstand"

Important games down for decision this week League-leading Jaguars in the "A" Division take on South China at. 11.00 a.m. tomorrow in a match the former must win to protect their slim lead, while the Braves and Pandas cross bats at-2.00 p.m. a prestige-redeeming tussle. Despite the fact that South China haven't yet broken any records for hitting, mentor Barros of the Jaguars will throw in speedballer Vic Pedruco against the Caroliners in this tions with just a single spark at the inopportune moment. The Jaguars will, nevertheliss, start off as favouri'es against the feeble hitting Careliners and this is the crucial game for the Jaguars who have been struck with permant-fever ever since they custed the Saints from the top of the needle game as insurance against an inspired side which may explode Barros' ambi-

· Barros is gunning for a streak of victories in the remaining weeks of the senson, and the sought after Molthern Trophy will be his if the Jaguars do not falter in the hame stretch. The Chroliners are staking their chances on P. C. Wong's slow twisters combined with an air-tight infield, and this combina loa_has_upaet strong teams in the past. The scoring will be low in this tilt, for although the Jaguars can belt a long hall, not many of them are in The relect 300 circle which makes them consistent.

BRAVES' HOPES The Braves are still keeping alive that faint flicker of hope on the chance of the Jabuars and Saints dropping further games, and to this end they will be all out to better the Pandas who have written off this year's effort. Opposing hurlers will be Chapple Remedies of the Tribe and Jackie Wei of the Pandas, with the former poexessing control while the latter may be in the speedmerchant category. Both teams bave a large following and a good growd will be on hand to give vecal support to the efforts of the diamond gladiators. Ruy Cordeiro, who has piloted the Warriors in the first year of their, pennant quest, will have to put on his thinking can when his gong face the mighty arm of Navy hurler Billings whose lightning offerings can really blister the air over the plate. In their last encounter mound-nce Billings registered hitless chutout over the hapless Warriors.

on the Navy winning, unless a catastrophe befall There is talk around town that the Delawares will be the Champlonship, and this corner will not be surprised if Tony

Rene Sequeira, who has masterminded the Hawks throughout the season, is fairly confident of breezing into Pennantville, but all the same he would like to chalk up an undefeated achievement. At the moment the Hawks streak has broken all records and this effort is likely to stay for years, THIS WEEK'S PROGRAMME

Weed-End

The race for the Senior Division Soccer League Championship reaches the final bend this week-end with the three teams, South China, Army and Sing Tao almost abreast of each other.

All these three teams will be seen in action this week-end, and interest will he centred on the capability of each one to maintain its position. Virtual leaders of the League, Army will have the easiest opposition in the
